

A close-up photograph of a modern, square, polished metal door handle. The handle features a cylindrical push-button mechanism in the center, which is slightly recessed into the square plate. The metal has a highly reflective, mirror-like finish, showing clear highlights and reflections. The handle is shown from a slightly angled perspective, emphasizing its three-dimensional form and the smooth transitions between the square plate and the cylindrical button.

